DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's amendment filed 12/23/2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 3. Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Diaz et al in view of Do et al, Hessie (US 2006/0003845 A1), and Cole (US 2004/0087374 A1).
- 4. Re claim 1, the previous rejection with respect to Diaz in view of Do is incorporated herein. However, Diaz and Do are silent on the newly amended limitations. With respect to the newly added limitations, Cole teaches:
 - a housing (figure 1);
- a box-shaped structure disposed within the gaming machine and enclosing the game control board (figure 3);

first and second members defining an access opening, said first member hingedly attached to said second member, and said first member moveable to a closed position relative to said second member in which said first and second members define a volume, and to an open position in which said first member is displaced with respect to said second member (figure 3); and a lid positionable relative to said first and second members for closing said access opening and defining said volume when said first member is in said closed position (figure 3, 38).

Cole is silent on the game control board being fixedly positioned on the first member. Hessie teaches a case in which a first member is hingedly attached to a second member with a game board affixed to the first member (figure 6). By implementing a computer case with a hinging first member attached to a second member as per Cole, access is provided to the interior of the housing via an opening (paragraph [0016]). By placing the motherboard and other vital system components on the hinging member, said components are more readily accessible and provides ease of access when combined with the hinged members and lid.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to implement a lid and to place system components on the hinging member in order to provide a quick way to access the interior of the system components while also ensuring that vital components are easily accessed without the need for reaching into tight spaces and needlessly disconnecting wires, cables, and other components.

- 5. Re claim 2, Cole teaches a bottom member, rear member, and side members, the top and bottom members spanning the sides (figures 1-5B).
- 6. Re claims 5-24, the previous rejection with respect to Diaz in view of Do is incorporated herein. Furthermore, figures 1-5B of Cole clearly teach the physical structure of a box with an opening and hinges. Claim 20 is similar in structure to claim 1 and thus may be rejected similarly.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-24 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Additionally, the arguments are not persuasive. Diaz clearly teaches a gaming machine. A computer is a gaming machine.

Conclusion

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
